

January 2, 1902

OBITUARY.

-1-2-1902

Though failing gradually throughout his long illness of three months, the death of Eddie Voigt came as a shock to his relatives and many friends, who had begun to build high hopes on the recent reports of his improvement.

As ever in his daily occupations he had shown a manly courage and true fortitude, so also to the last moment in his long battle for life, he displayed a wonderful cheerfulness and heroism which quite deceived his anxious widowed mother.

Only a serious relapse was able to destroy his remaining little stock of vitality and in peaceful slumber he at last yielded to the grim tyrant.

Though death is alway sad, his, if possible, is doubly so, as he was stricken almost on the eve of his wedding day; for during the holidays he was to have been married to Miss Edna Burton, whose loss is irreparable.

He was born in March 1879, and would have been twenty-three years of age on his next birthday.

He leaves his affianced, a widowed mother, six sisters and three brothers to mourn his untimely death. * *